Hello Mr. Alexander:

The BDCP is being spearheaded by the State of California and private water contractors. EPA is serving in a regulatory review capacity to ensure that the Plan complies with the Clean Water Act. I don't think the Plan was released on June 29th, but we at EPA are not in a position to speak for the partnership surrounding BDCP. I suggest you contact the person listed on their website: Karla Nemeth <karla.nemeth@resources.ca.gov>.

The website includes a general number too (1-866-924-9955), and I've pasted the link into this message for your reference.

Subject: Bay Delta Conservation Plan (BDCP) Draft EIS was scheduled for official release June 29 2012. What happened?

Bay Delta Conservation Plan (BDCP) Draft EIS/EIR was scheduled for official release June 29 2012, along with contact information for to register Official Comment. That Draft EIS/EIR is not posted (inclusive of contact information for to submit Comment), anywhere.

That which is posted (pre June 29 2012) is (as matter of law, as I recall) not that to which any Comment may at all be considered. And besides that, there is no contact information for to submit comment, even for that which is posted. Where is the Official Draft EIS (inclusive of contact information for to submit Comment)? Why has it not been released, yet? What happened?

Please reply as soon as possible.

Thank you.
